CENSOR SUPPRESSES NEWS OF ZEPPELIN RAID ON LONDON

Cautiously Worded Dispatch States That London Was Raided and Several Fires Started by Zeppelins During the Night But That Details Are Being Suppressed by the Censor.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, June 1.—All England anxiously awaited word from the government today as to the effects of the Zeppelin raid upon London last night. Even the people of London were kept in ignorance for many hours because the censor forbade the publication of details other than those issued by the press bureau.

At 1 o'clock this morning the press bureau announced that Zeppelins had passed over the outlying districts of London, but up to noon today no definite information that could be published or transmitted by correspondents here was forthcoming.

The first news of the Zeppelin raid reached London from Ramsgate on the coast of Kent. As soon as the German airships were sighted, all towns of England were notified to extinguish their lights, the special constables of London and other cities were called to their posts and the military establishment took complete control of the situation.

Soon after the Zeppelins passed Ramsgate they were reported flying over Brentwood, only seventeen miles northeast of London. They were apparently traveling at a speed of more than 60 miles an hour.

Several fires were reported to have broken out in towns over which the Zeppelins passed, indicating that they were employing incendiary bombs, but it was impossible to learn during the forenoon the extent of the damage caused by the flames.

London, June 1.—Four killed, one fatally wounded and five other persons seriously hurt is the total of casualties resulting from the long expected German air raid over London, which took place last night. One infant, one boy, a man and a woman were killed outright by bombs dropped from Zeppelins that passed over the outlying districts.

Ninety bombs, mostly of incendiary character, were dropped. Three big fires and several smaller ones were started, but they were soon quenched by the firemen.

No public buildings were damaged. In addition to the seriously injured, more than a score of other persons are suffering from lesser wounds.

The attack threw sections of the city into panic and the special "war constables" of Scotland Yard, were called out to deal with the situation.

Following were the fourth degree Knights in top coats, silk hats, grey gloves and carrying swords. Behind was a long line of the Knights. The excursion to Poughkeepsie drew a large number of passengers and seats on the outer decks were at a premium. Upon arriving in Poughkeepsie the line was reformed and the locals participated in the parade held in connection with the state convention of that order. Members of the G. A. R. were the guests of honor and rode in flag-draped automobiles through the line of march.

After the parade a meeting was held in Collingwood opera house. Justice Morschauer opened the meeting and introduced Justice Tompkins who presided. He in turn introduced the Hon. ## WHO HELD UP THOSE PLANS FOR BRIDGE?

A Plain Statement of Facts and Official Records Showing Where Credit and Blame Should Rest.

The characteristic Democratic attitude in public affairs to claim credit for everything and deny that anyone else has done any work has come to the front again in Kingston in connection with the impetus given to the Sleighsborough bridge by the Republican board of supervisors in acquiring the property needed for construction of the bridge.

An unnamed Democrat has issued a statement intended to answer The Freeman's editorial comment of Monday night which called attention to the fact that whatever work had been accomplished for the bridge was due to the efforts of the Republican organization and Republicans individually.

There should be no disparagement of anybody's efforts, as The Freeman stated, because we are all interested in securing the bridge as soon as possible, but the force of the fact of organized Republican attainment cannot fail to project itself in the mind when the history of the bridge movement from its inception to the present time is considered.

The idea of a bridge across the Rondout creek is so old that almost it might be said that the mind of man might not be to the contrary; certainly the idea extends back of the present Democratic organization.

The Old Route Indefinite.

Chapter 25 of the Consolidated Laws of the state of New York, which is known as the Highway Law, became effective as one of the Consolidated Laws on February 17, 1909. Section 120 of that law designated "Highways to be constructed or improved by the state," and Route 3 was planned by the framers of the law to extend through Ulster county. Route 3, according to the law as it existed in 1909, designated the route from Newburgh north so as to reach Ulster county by a route to be designated by the state highway commission.

John A. Dix became governor of New York state on January 1, 1911, and in that year he was visited by residents of Ulster county who wanted to ascertain his attitude in regard to a bridge across the Rondout creek. He was opposed to it. George Washington was the Democratic assemblyman from the First district of Ulster county during that year. Judge Gathright of Virginia was assemblyman from the Second district, and the late William Pierson Fiero was the Democratic senator from Ulster and Greene counties during that year and 1912. The governor of the state was a Democrat that year and the senate and assembly were both Democratic by overwhelming majorities. The Democratic organization didn't do anything in 1911 for the Sleighsborough bridge.

Making a State Bridge Possible.

Beginning January 1, 1912, Andrew J. Cook of this city became assemblyman from the First district of Ulster county, having been elected on the Republican ticket to succeed Mr. Washburn, the Democratic assemblyman, in the preceding November.

In the latter part of the session of the legislature of 1912 Mr. Cook introduced a bill in the assembly which later became Chapter 157 of the Laws of 1912. It became a law and went into effect on April 5, 1912. Mr. Cook's bill made the Sleighsborough bridge possible.

What Mr. Cook's bill provided was this: It amended the highway law in relation to route 3, so that the route after leaving Newburgh and passing north through the eastern part of Ulster county should extend to a point on the Rondout creek at or near the present chain ferry known as the Sleighsborough ferry, thence over said creek into the city of Kingston by a suitable bridge to be constructed and maintained by the commission.

As to the bill which made the Sleighsborough bridge possible, The

Freeman takes great pleasure in quoting a statement made by Mr. Cook to a representative of The Freeman today.

Credit Where Credit Belongs.

"The bill changing Route 3 so that the state highway should enter Kingston over a bridge to be constructed and maintained by the state highway commission was prepared by the chairman of the Republican county committee. I introduced it in the assembly. Senator Fiero was sick all that year and was not present in the senate, and at my request it was introduced there by Senator Fawley of New York. The bill was passed by the assembly, which was Republican, and went to the senate. Just after it reached the senate, that body adopted a resolution providing that it would consider only bills introduced by senators, and all other bills went to the committee on rules. The bill which I had introduced in the assembly being identical with the bill which I had requested Senator Fawley to introduce in the senate, unanimous consent was given for the substitution of the assembly for the Fawley bill in the senate and it was passed and became a law, as chapter 157 of the laws of 1912."

Who Held Up the War Department?

According to a statement in which the Democratic organization is sponsor, events did not transpire in that way at all, but it is worth while to examine into the facts, so that readers of The Freeman may be entirely familiar with them. It is only necessary to mention these facts and readers of The Freeman will immediately recall them. According to the Democratic statement, "One objection was the failure of the Republican war department to approve of the plans. It was not until President Wilson was elected and we had a Democratic secretary of war that these plans were approved, thus assuring the bridge."

The action of the Republican board of supervisors in providing rights of way for the approaches of this bridge was only taken after public sentiment had practically forced them to do it. The Democrats voted for these approaches; the Democratic party has been on record all along in favor of the proposition, and it was only through Democratic influences that the bridge was made possible at all."

Colonel Black was designated by the war department to hold a hearing on the bridge plans and he held that hearing at the earliest possible moment after the plans had been prepared. That hearing was held in Kingston on December 19, 1912, after President Wilson had been elected, but before he had taken office. So far as Colonel Black was concerned, the matter was not closed until after the fourth of March following, on which day President Wilson was inaugurated and "we had a Democratic secretary of war."

It was a Democratic secretary of war, therefore, and not a Republican, who withheld his approval of the plans for nearly, if not more than a year, and then the plans were returned to the Democratic highway commissioner at Albany, where all matters were held up until a Republican governor had been inducted into office and a Republican senate and assembly had taken hold of the state government.

The Two Important Steps.

Then and not until then did the state highway department forward to Ulster county the right of way plans showing the property necessary to be acquired. Subsequent events are of such recent occurrence that it is unnecessary to recite them. The facts which stand forth most prominently in the whole history of the Sleighsborough bridge up to date are that the plan for amending the highway law so as to provide for a bridge to be constructed and maintained by the state was prepared and the bill drafted by the Ulster county Republican organization, and after the lapse of several years of Democratic inactivity, the acquisition of land was made possible only after a Republican state administration had come into office, and promptly the steps to acquire the land necessary for the bridge were taken by the Republican board of supervisors.

Truth Must Prevail.

The Freeman does not like to call particular attention to incompetency in high places in the Democratic party because there is so much of it there that the mere thought of it is distressing, and newspapers, like individuals, should try to relieve distress and make people as happy as possible instead of making them unhappy. Nevertheless, under the circumstances and the utter disregard of facts by the local Democratic organization, it becomes necessary to do so, for truth is mighty and must prevail.

The service of the Hudson Navigation Company received a black eye on Memorial Day when its steamers left a large number of passengers at Kingston Point Park. According to the stories told by the fifty or more excursionists who were left on the boats had advertised to give ample time at the Point for dinner and other amusement. The Trojan had no passengers and those who had taken the opportunity to go into town found on returning that their boat had gone back to Albany. Among them were many young girls who had but little outside of their return ticket. Some of the people at the Point furnished car fare to Albany, Schenectady and other points and the police also helped out those who were marooned here.

WHO HELD UP THOSE PLANS FOR BRIDGE?

A Plain Statement of Facts and Official Records Showing Where Credit and Blame Should Rest.

The characteristic Democratic attitude in public affairs to claim credit for everything and deny that anyone else has done any work has come to the front again in Kingston in connection with the impetus given to the Sleighsborough bridge by the Republican board of supervisors in acquiring the property needed for construction of the bridge.

An unnamed Democrat has issued a statement intended to answer The Freeman's editorial comment of Monday night which called attention to the fact that whatever work had been accomplished for the bridge was due to the efforts of the Republican county organization and Republicans individually. There should be no disparagement of anybody's efforts.

The Freeman stated, because we are all interested in securing the bridge as soon as possible, but the force of the fact of organized Republican attainment cannot fail to project itself in the mind when the history of the bridge movement from its inception to the present time is considered.

The idea of a bridge across the Rondout creek is so old that almost it might be said that the mind of man runneth not to the contrary; certainly the idea extends back of the present Democratic organization.

The Old Route Indefinite.

Chapter 25 of the Consolidated Laws of the state of New York, which is known as the Highway Law, became effective as one of the Consolidated Laws on February 17, 1909. Section 120 of that law designated "Highways to be constructed or improved by the state," and Route 3 was planned by the framers of the law to extend through Ulster county. Route 3, according to the history as it existed in 1909, designated the route from Newburgh north so as to reach Ulster county by a route to be designated by the state highway commission.

John A. Dix became governor of New York state on January 1, 1911, and in that year he was visited by residents of Ulster county who wanted to ascertain his attitude in regard to a bridge across the Rondout creek to be built at the expense of the state. He was opposed to it. George Washington was the Democratic assemblyman from the First district of Ulster county during that year; Judge Gathright of Virginia was assemblyman from the Second district, and the late William Pierson Fiero was the Democratic senator from Ulster and Greene counties during that year and 1912. The governor of the state was a Democrat that year and the senate and assembly were both Democratic by overwhelming majorities. The Democratic organization didn't do anything in 1911 for the Sleighsborough bridge.

Making a State Bridge Possible.

Beginning January 1, 1912, Andrew J. Cook of this city became assemblyman from the First district of Ulster county, having been elected on the Republican ticket to succeed Mr. Washburn, the Democratic assemblyman, in the preceding November.

In the latter part of the session of the legislature of 1912 Mr. Cook introduced a bill in the assembly which later became Chapter 157 of the Laws of 1912. It became a law and went into effect on April 5, 1912. Mr. Cook's bill made the Sleighsborough bridge possible.

What Mr. Cook's bill provided was this: It amended the highway law in relation to route 3, so that the route after leaving Newburgh and passing north through the eastern part of Ulster county should extend to a point on the Rondout creek at or near the present chain ferry known as the Sleighsborough ferry, thence over said creek into the city of Kingston by a suitable bridge to be constructed and maintained by the commission.

As to the bill which made the Sleighsborough bridge possible, The

Freeman takes great pleasure in quoting a statement made by Mr. Cook to a representative of The Freeman today.

Credit Where Credit Belongs.

"The bill changing Route 3 so that the state highway should enter Kingston over a bridge to be constructed and maintained by the state highway commission was prepared by the chairman of the Republican county committee. I introduced it in the assembly. Senator Fiero was sick all that year and was not present in the senate, and at my request it was introduced there by Senator Frawley of New York. The bill was passed by the assembly, which was Republican, and it went to the senate. Just after it reached the senate, that body adopted a resolution providing that it would consider only bills introduced by senators, and all other bills went to the committee on rules. The bill which I had introduced in the assembly being identical with the bill which I had requested Senator Frawley to introduce in the senate, unanimous consent was given for the substitution of the assembly for the Frawley bill in the senate and it was passed and became a law, as chapter 157 of the laws of 1912."

Who Held Up the War Department?

According to a statement to which the Democratic organization is sponsor, events did not transpire in that way at all, but it is worth while to examine into the facts, so that readers of The Freeman may be entirely familiar with them. It is only necessary to mention these facts and readers of The Freeman will immediately recall them. According to the Democratic statement, "One objection was the failure of the Republican war department to approve of the plans. It was not until President Wilson was elected and we had a Democratic secretary of war that these plans were approved, thus assuring the bridge. The action of the Republican board of supervisors in providing rights of way for the approaches of this bridge was only taken after public sentiment had practically forced them to do it. The Democrats voted for these approaches; the Democratic party has been on record all along in favor of the proposition, and it was only through Democratic influences that the bridge was made possible at all."

Colonel Black was designated by the war department to hold a hearing on the bridge plans and he held that hearing at the earliest possible moment after the plans had been prepared. That hearing was held in Kingston on December 19, 1912, after President Wilson had been elected but before he had taken office. So far as Colonel Black was concerned, the matter was not closed until after the fourth of March, following, on which day President Wilson was inaugurated and "we had a Democratic secretary of war, therefore, and not a Republican, who withheld his approval of the plans for nearly, if not more than a year, and then the plans were returned to the Democratic highway commissioner at Albany, where all matters were held up until a Republican governor had been inducted into office and a Republican senate and assembly had taken hold of the state government.

The Two Important Steps.

Then and not until then did the state highway department forward to Ulster county the right of way plans showing the property necessary to be acquired. Subsequent events are of such recent occurrence that it is unnecessary to recite them. The facts which stand forth most prominently in the whole history of the Sleighsborough bridge up to date are that the plan for amending the highway law so as to provide for a bridge to be constructed and maintained by the state was prepared and the bill drafted by the Ulster county Republican organization, and after the lapse of several years of Democratic inactivity, the acquisition of land was made possible only after a Republican state administration had come into office, and promptly the steps to acquire the land necessary for the bridge were taken by the Republican board of supervisors.

Truth Must Prevail.

The Freeman does not like to call particular attention to incompetency in high places in the Democratic party because there is so much of it

there that the mere thought of it is distressing, and newspapers, like individuals, should try to relieve distress and make people as happy as possible instead of making them unhappy. Nevertheless, under the circumstances and the utter disregard of facts by the local Democratic organization, it becomes necessary to do so, for truth is mighty and must prevail.

The service of the Hudson Navigation Company received a black eye on Memorial Day when its steamers left a large number of passengers at Kingston Point Park. According to the stories told by the fifty or more excursionists who were left the boats had advertised to give ample time at the Point for dinner and other amusement. The Trojan had no sooner landed than the Rensselaer appeared and those who had taken the opportunity to go into town found on returning that their boat had gone back to Albany. Among them were many young girls who had but little outside of their return ticket. Some of the people at the Point furnished car fare to Albany, Schenectady and other points and the police also helped out those who were marooned here.

SELECTING JURY TO TRY VAN AKEN

The case against Van Aken is being prosecuted by District Attorney Cunningham and Assistant District Attorney Traver, while ex-Mayor William D. Held in Contempt.

Mr. Deyo is a carpenter by trade and has done boatwork on the D. & H. canal when it was running. He was not opposed to the infliction of the death penalty he said.

Edgar Van Steenburgh of Monticello avenue was the second juror called and was excused from serving by the district attorney. Mr. Van Steenburgh said he worked for the West Shore railroad and had never seen Van Aken before until he was pointed out in the court room to him. He also was not opposed to the death penalty and said he did not know how we would get along without such a provision in the law. Joseph Omack of West Hurley was challenged by the district attorney when he said he was opposed to the death penalty and was excused by the court from serving. He is an acting foreman for the board of water supply of New York city and formerly lived in Pennsylvania. George Thornton of Spring Glen

Woman's World

A Woman Who Wants the Right to Wear Voter's Button.

DR. ANNA HOWARD SHAW.

The National American Woman Suffrage association has flooded the Panama-Pacific exposition with a silent argument for woman suffrage. This argument is nothing less than a modest little button which is appearing, almost overnight, as it were, upon the arm of thousands of women in attendance upon the exposition. The button reads merely, "I'm a Voter."

The idea is, of course, to make the visitors from the conservative eastern states realize, through visual aid, that there are thousands and thousands of well groomed, happy, sensible looking women who actually vote, and the National association has seized upon the Panama-Pacific exposition as the best possible place in which to demonstrate the truth of their contention. These buttons are being sent to women through the state suffrage organizations with which most of them are still affiliated. Several million have been turned out it is said, for this novel demonstration.

The idea was conceived by Miss Jeannette Rankin of Montana, now a member of the congressional committee of the N. A. W. S. A., and was promptly seized upon by Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, president of the association.

"Miss Rankin can wear the button," said Dr. Shaw at the national headquarters in New York, "thanks to the men of Montana, but I can't wear it until the men of Pennsylvania give me the right next November. But I have saved a button in the hope that the men of Pennsylvania will be as just and as sensible as the western men, who have enfranchised 10,000,000 women and seem to be glad of it."

The "Hello" microbes. Many a woman housed by a cold amuses herself and attends to necessary business over the telephone. But when all the rest of the family come down with like colds she wonders how they caught it, because she has "not kissed anybody."

Nobody thinks of the mouthpiece of the telephone, and yet there is there a more convenient harbor than that for germs breathed into it from throat and nose. The average household does not even think of dusting out the transmitter, and it is cleaned only upon the occasional visits of the repair man from the telephone company. As a matter of fact, it should be washed out frequently with a disinfectant. Even the ear piece is benefited by an occasional "wipe," as it rests against the hair and ear of everybody in the house, to say nothing of visiting workmen who want to call up headquarters.

When You Clean Up. Save fine towels that are too worn for further use and lay them in the bottom of the drawers, with lavender between the folds.

While the clothes on the line are airing, pack flannels, furs, feathers, etc., in mothproof paper bags or boxes to be stored away in the attic, and before the dew falls at night return cotton and other fabrics required for summer use to the drawers and wardrobes that have been cleaned and aired.

Destroy with a hard heart every useless thing and burn everything that you see no probability of needing in the near future. With the best of care odds and ends will accumulate, and the labor of handling and preserving them in the hope of finding use for them by and by is often more than they are worth.

Three Sewing Hints. In sewing in hot weather use an emery "strawberry" frequently. Passing the needle in and out through it removes moisture, all danger of rust and insures much easier manipulation. Never allow a needle to squeak.

Wax the thread thoroughly before attempting to string beads, to sew them on any material. This makes the work easier as well as stronger, and the thread or sewing silk will never knot.

Instead of binding or felling seams on lingerie, use narrow lace insertion, one piece on each side of the raw edges. Stitch on both sides with the sewing machine. Lace braids, also the bought ready made lawn folds, are admirable for the purpose and are easy of manipulation.

Days of Whaling Over.

Dundee was one of the last ports. It is not the last, in Great Britain to prosecute whale fishing in the Arctic regions, but of late years no ships have been fitted out for this purpose and the industry is now practically a dead letter in this place.

Recipes of Sorts. Blancmange With Oranges.—Mix four tablespoonfuls of cornstarch with one-half cupful of cold milk, pour gradually into one and one-half cupfuls of hot milk, cover and cook twenty minutes in a double boiler, stirring occasionally. Add the yolks of two eggs beaten with three tablespoonfuls of sugar and one-quarter teaspoonful of salt, stir and cook three minutes longer and turn into a dish which will stand the heat of the oven. Sprinkle with two tablespoonfuls of granulated sugar, cool, cover with a meringue made of the beaten whites, two tablespoonfuls of sugar and a few drops of orange, brown lightly and chill. At serving time surround with thin slices of orange.

Baked Eggs With Cheese.—Butter a shallow baking dish, cover with a layer of grated cheese, break over it carefully the required number of fresh eggs, cover with cheese and sprinkle with pepper, salt and paprika. Pour in two tablespoonfuls of cream for each egg, cover with soft breadcrumbs moistened with melted butter, then dust with mustard, paprika and salt and bake until the cheese is melted.

Graham Nut Bread.—Mix and sift together two cupfuls of graham flour, a cupful of white flour, one-half teaspoonful of soda, a teaspoonful of baking powder and a teaspoonful of salt. Add one-half cupful of brown sugar, one-eighth cupful of molasses and three-quarters cupful each of water and milk. Beat well, stir in a scant cupful of broken nut meats and bake in a moderate oven.

Plain Coffee Jelly. Two cupfuls of coffee, one-half cupful sugar, one heaping tablespoonful of gelatin. Heat all together and strain; serve cold with whipped cream sweetened and flavored.

Coffee Cream. Here is an inexpensive dessert. Into a double boiler put two-thirds of a quart of strained coffee, add milk until a quart of the mixture is obtained; sweeten to taste. Place over hot water and bring to boiling point. Add six level tablespoonfuls of cornstarch dissolved in milk. Cook ten minutes, stirring constantly until thick. Chill and serve with sugar and cream.

A Multiplication Trick.

Here is a little trick in multiplication that may amuse you. Ask a friend to write down the numbers 12345670, omitting the number 8. Then tell him to select any one figure from the list, multiply it by 9 and with the answer to this sum multiply the whole list—thus, assuming that he selects either the figure 4 or 6:

Select 4x9=36
12345670
36
46857064
2070030
46857064
97757368

You see, the answer of the sum is composed of figures similar to the one selected. Any figure used will turn the same trick.

Dogs of War.

In the British army the Airedale terrier is used extensively. His coat is of such nature that it is suited to any climate and he is a highly intelligent dog with a wonderful power of scenting and hearing, is of a desirable size and is often used as a scout or sentry as well as an aid to the Red Cross service. The Airedale can readily distinguish the smell of his master from that of a stranger. These military dogs are taught not to bark. When they scent the enemy they give a low growl and often will stand like a pointer. They are of great service as night sentries.—Argonaut.

MODERN ARBALESTIERS IN THE FRENCH ARMY.

Although this war has produced many new weapons of destruction, occasionally you will find in the trenches of the allies many old time war weapons. The sling shot, which was probably the first kind of weapon used to correspond with today's artillery and guns, is sometimes used to hurl bombs and even stones into the trenches of the enemy. In the above picture you see a part of a company of French soldiers with another of the most ancient weapons called Arbalestier, which resemble a bow and arrow.

MRS. JUDITH W. SMITH.

Cereal With Cream.
Bacon With Fried Bananas.
Breakfast Puffs. Coffee.

MIX a cupful of sifted flour with one-half teaspoonful of salt, add the beaten yolks of two eggs diluted with a cupful of sweet milk, beat until perfectly smooth, then fold in the stiffly beaten whites, turn into buttered cups and bake in a very hot oven.

Recipes of Sorts.

Blanchange With Oranges.—Mix four tablespoonfuls of cornstarch with one-half cupful of cold milk, pour gradually into one and one-half cupfuls of hot milk, cover and cook twenty minutes in a double boiler, stirring occasionally. Add the yolks of two eggs beaten with three tablespoonfuls of sugar and one-quarter teaspoonful of salt, stir and cook three minutes longer and turn into a dish which will stand the heat of the oven. Sprinkle with two tablespoonfuls of granulated sugar, cool, cover with a meringue made of the beaten whites, two tablespoonfuls of sugar and a few drops of orange, brown lightly and chill. At serving time surround with thin slices of orange.

Baked Eggs With Cheese.—Butter a shallow baking dish, cover with a layer of grated cheese, break over it carefully the required number of fresh eggs, cover with cheese and sprinkle with pepper, salt and paprika. Pour in two tablespoonfuls of cream for each egg, cover with soft breadcrumbs moistened with melted butter, then dust with mustard, paprika and salt and bake until the cheese is melted.

Graham Nut Bread.—Mix and sift together two cupfuls of graham flour, a cupful of white flour, one-half teaspoonful of soda, a teaspoonful of baking powder and a teaspoonful of salt. Add one-half cupful of brown sugar, one-eighth cupful of molasses and three-quarters cupful each of water and milk. Beat well, stir in a scant cupful of broken nut meats and bake in a moderate oven.

Plain Coffee Jelly.

Two cupfuls of coffee, one-half cupful sugar, one heaping tablespoonful of gelatin. Heat all together and strain; serve cold with whipped cream sweetened and flavored.

Coffee Cream.

Here is an inexpensive dessert. Into a double boiler put two-thirds of a quart of strained coffee, add milk until a quart of the mixture is obtained; sweeten to taste. Place over hot water and bring to boiling point. Add six level tablespoonfuls of cornstarch dissolved in milk. Cook ten minutes, stirring constantly until thick. Chill and serve with sugar and cream.

MODERN ARBALESTIERS.

MODERN ARBALESTIERS IN THE FRENCH ARMY.

Although this war has produced many new weapons of destruction, occasionally you will find in the trenches of the allies many old time weapons. The sling shot, which was probably the first kind of weapon used to correspond with today's artillery and guns, is sometimes used to hurl bombs and even stones into the trenches of the enemy.

In the above picture you see a part of a company of French soldiers with another of the most ancient weapons called Arbalestier, which resemble a bow and arrow.

Navigation Notes.

Owing to having an excursion out of New York to Poughkeepsie and return on Monday, the steamer Benjamin B. Odell did not come up to Rondout until about 1 o'clock this afternoon, having left New York at 8 o'clock. The boat resumed her regular run at 5 o'clock.

The tug E. L. Levy came down from Albany with the Cornell out this morning. The Osceola is bound up from New York.

A Multiplication Trick.

Here is a little trick in multiplication that may amuse you. Ask a friend to write down the numbers 12345679, omitting the number 8. Then tell him to select any one figure from the list, multiply it by 9 and with the answer to this sum multiply the whole list—thus, assuming that he selects either the figure 4 or 6:

Select 4x9=36.	Select 6x9=54.
12345679	12345679
36	54
7907074	4022716
8760387	6172505
4444444	6666666

You see, the answer of the sum is composed of figures similar to the one selected. Any figure used will turn the same trick.

Dogs of War.

In the British army the Airedale terrier is used extensively. His coat is of such nature that it is suited to any climate and he is a highly intelligent dog with a wonderful power of scenting and hearing, is of a desirable size and is often used as a scout or sentry as well as an aid to the Red Cross service. The Airedales can readily distinguish the smell of his master from that of a stranger. These military dogs are taught not to bark. When they scent the enemy they give a low growl and often will stand like a pointer. They are of great service as night sentries.—Argonaut.

U. S. CRUISER, NORTH CAROLINA, AGROUND IN EGYPT.

Ellenville, June 1.—A large crowd was in attendance at the opening races of the season of 1915 on the Driving Park grounds Monday afternoon. The races commenced soon after 2 o'clock with Louis A. Hoornbeek as starter of the races. The matched race between Dr. Chase of High Falls, driven by John Barleson of Ellenville, and Winson Worthy of Stone Ridge. First heat won by the High Falls horse. The following three heats were won by the Stone Ridge horse, half mile heats, very close, hardly a neck ahead. In the green class, Sheeley captured first prize, a set of harness. In the free for all George Galbraith captured the prize, a silver loving cup, presented by Dr. W. E. Woodend. The races were considered by all attending to be extra good. Much credit is due Starter Hoornbeek and the committee who had the races in charge. The People's Band furnished excellent music.

A large congregation was present at the M. E. Church Sunday evening where a patriotic service was held and members of Ward Post, G. A. R., and Sons of Veterans were the guests of honor. The church was bright in its decorations of the American flag. The music under the direction of Frank J. Campbell, the organist, was appropriate and of high order. The choir and congregation sang three hymns which included "My Country 'Tis of Thee" and "Nearer My God to Thee." A trio composed of the Rev. W. H. Moser, Guy L. Gould and Gorman Mance sang very effectively "Tenting Tonight," which was well received with scarcely a dry eye. The service was followed by the sermon. The Rev. W. H. Moser, pastor, delivered a most excellent sermon, taking for his theme, "The debt of honor our country owes the soldiers living and soldiers departed." The able discourse was most heartily received by the soldiers and the large congregation present. Monday, observed as Memorial Day, was quietly celebrated in Ellenville. A committee in charge at Ward Post, G. A. R., rooms received the contribution of flowers from the local W. C. T. U., in charge of Mrs. W. C. McNally and from a large number of the village people. The flowers were taken with the flags to the village cemeteries for the decorating of the soldier's graves. Members of Ward Post, G. A. R., with the Ellenville drum corps, marched to Fantineville cemetery at nine o'clock, and after the decorating of graves marched to the soldier's monument, which occupies a prominent place in the cemetery, and there a brief service was held. Following this service the soldiers marched in return to the post rooms where a reunion is held each Memorial Day, and at twelve o'clock dinner is served in their honor by the Sons of Veterans. The committee in charge were ably assisted in the preparing and serving of the dinner, which was most heartily enjoyed. This was followed by a rest hour and a general visit when at 2:30 o'clock the members of the post marched to the new school building on Maple avenue, where they were the guests of honor of General Ely S. Barker, Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., who presented to this school building a very appropriate service was held. The presentation speech was made by Councilor Andrew W. Lent of Highland, New York, on behalf of the order, and the beautiful gift was received and accepted by H. W. Coons, secretary of the board of education, on behalf of the school. Both speeches were most heartily received and applauded. A large crowd was present and with the beautiful day as if to crown the impressive ceremonies.

At the auction sale of the household goods of the late Mrs. Ann Flatow Sheldon on Saturday, no small amount of curiosity was exhibited for at this time many antique articles of the late well known "Auntie Girard" was sold. For many years Mrs. Gerard kept the well known Gerard House following the death of her husband and was well and favorably known in town and many miles distant. She was an ardent admirer of the antique and seldom, if ever, parted with an article. Upon her death several years ago the said things became the possessions of Mrs. Flatow Sheldon, and she likewise parted with none of the so called antiques and kept everything under lock and key except as was her great delight to show to any friends or visitors the said antique room. Well on Saturday a large crowd assembled which included many Hebrews to purchase at auction some article of perhaps no value except as a antique. One large plaid silk dress of perhaps ten yards in width brought 88 cents. This same dress without doubt had been worn by "Auntie Gerard" fifty years ago and yet it is said to have been in a good state of preservation. It was purchased by Ellenville's antique dealer who likewise purchased many other articles of the like, but too numerous to mention and so household goods and antiques of a one time much admired woman and to this day yet very reverently spoken of is scattered to the four winds.

The following poem was written and dedicated to Mrs. Mary Gerard on her seventy-ninth birthday by the late Gilbert A. Russell of Ellenville.

We meet here dear friends on this August day
For to celebrate the seventy-ninth anniversary.
The birthday of our dear respected friend,
Whose honored memory with us shall never end.

Seventy-nine years have passed and surely gone,
Since first she saw the light of her native sun.

In that land she loved so far away
When her youthful mind was full of play.

Days, months and years, how fast they fly,
When first we begin to live we begin to die.

All our earthly glory soon fades and is gone,
And we pass away to our heavenly home.

Many years yet we hopefully trust,
To our dear friend who has lived so long with us,
Who has cared for our wants in days gone by,

And never turned away but always heard our cry.

The busy years that have passed away,
Come back to her mind on this birthday.

Of earthly friends she held so dear,
Who are leaving with each fleeting year.

Her gentle life has been one of love
As though it was guided by her father above
There seems nothing though it was ever so hard,
But what was done in a Christian way by Mary Gerard.

We all respond in our happy moments like this,
That she may enjoy many long years of happiness.
And when her last birthday shall come
She will by her dear friends be taken to her lasting home.

Remember, friends, on this birthday
Of other years that have passed away
And look ahead for years to come,
When we shall meet here again with this dear friend, in her loving home.

The members of the Ellenville Fife and drum Corps, gave a surprise to Aaron Clearwater, one of the corps efficient members at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Clearwater on Hermance street Friday evening in honor of his seventeenth birthday. The corps were out on dress parade and had been marching for some time when they halted in front of Aaron's home and proceeded to enter, which they did much to the young man's surprise. A very happy evening was spent together with games, music and fine refreshments served. The boys were loth to take their departure.

PLAYER IS ECCENTRIC

Rube Waddell Had Nothing on Southpaw Pitcher Evans.

Twirler Was Never Quite Good Enough for Majors and Pitched in Almost Every Minor League of Note in the Country.

Rube Waddell has been called the most eccentric character the national game has ever known, but Rube probably gained the reputation because he was a great twirler and constantly before the major league public. But the real eccentric person is Rube Evans, southpaw pitcher, who was never quite good enough for the majors.

Evans has pitched in almost every minor league of note in the country, and earned a nation-wide reputation as a "squirrel." His most amusing stunt probably was the biggest "bone" that ever was "pulled" on a ball field. He was pitching for Portland a few years ago when the squeeze play was all the rage because of the manner in which the Athletics were executing the play. The opposing teams were using it with such regularity that Manager McCredie was in a rage when men were on third with none or one out.

Finally after the play had been worked on Evans twice in one inning, McCredie said:

"The next time that they try that play, bean him (meaning, of course, the batsman), that will stop them."

An inning later the opposing team tried the squeeze. "There he goes," was the cry set up by Evans' teammates. Imagine the surprise and excitement in the grounds when Evans whirled about and threw straight as an arrow at the base runner. His aim was good and the ball struck the runner just back of the ear and stretched him out cold. A riot almost followed and Evans was lucky to escape being mobbed.

On the way back to the hotel, McCredie said: "What the deuce were you thinking of, you big luncheon?" "You told me to bean him, didn't you? Why didn't you say the batter? I thought you means the base runner."

LIKES CHANCES OF DODGERS

Jake Daubert Says Brooklyn Team Is of First Division Material—Improves at Every Start.

Jake Daubert, the Brooklyn first sacker, likes the looks of the Dodgers this season. "We will improve right along," declares the first base king. "That doesn't mean that we will win every game, but we will be playing better baseball with every start. The club that beats us will have to be on its toes every minute. We have the material for a first division club and it is my honest belief that we will be up there when the curtain is rung down next October. Our team is showing more life this year than it has in several seasons. The boys are on their toes in the field, talking and fighting all the time. We were handicapped to some extent at the start by our training park in Florida."

Bresnahan Backs Tener.

Manager Bresnahan of the Cubs has taken sides with Governor Tener and Ban Johnson against the emery ball. Several of the Cubs' pitchers have shown a disposition to toy with it in practice just for the fun of the thing, so Bresnahan has issued an edict that he will slap a fine on any man who even roughens the ball. He believes that ability to use the forbidden curve might act as a temptation and cause some of his twirlers to subject the Cubs to the possibility of forfeiting a game through its use.

After Willard's Title.

In view of the number of professional baseball players getting into trouble with the law for engaging in fistfights, Jess Willard had better keep himself in trim to protect his title.

Happy Felsch says his friends can change his name to Happier if the Sox again win the Chicago pennant, and they can call him Happiest if they "cop the world's rag."

A Battle Within a Battle

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Our battery had been doing splendid service. From our position on the right we could see the shells drop into the woods and break up the formation of the Confederate cavalry every time they left cover.

We knew where they were. Jeb Stuart's old troopers were there; Wade Hampton's dragoons were there—Imboden, Rosser, Mosby—every Confederate cavalry command we had fought in Virginia was making ready in the shelter of the woods to charge on our left flank.

"Boom! Boom! Boom!" The gunners knew what was at stake. The orders were to dis at the guns if the position could not be held. For half an hour their bursting shells kept the front clear, and we of the cavalry cheered them.

Out from the cover of the forest at half a dozen places gallop the gray troopers by hundreds. They wheel to the right and left, form in two lines, take their distance, close up with a trembling motion, and now there will be a grand charge. The shells burst in front of them, among them, but discipline is stronger than the fear of death.

Less than 300 of us—all cavalry—to support the battery. If that mob of gray riders ever reaches the foot of the slope we shall be picked up and sent whirling like dry leaves in a hurricane. The fire of the six guns becomes more rapid. It is truly terrible, but in their haste the gunners do less execution.

"Left wheel! Forward! Right dress!" Just 278 of us by actual count as we dress in two ranks. What are we going to do?

"Draw sabers! Forward! Trot! Gallop! Charge!"

They are driving us down at that body of men—ten times our number—to break and check the charge. If we can stop them for ten minutes the battery will be saved by the infantry. We oblique to the left as we go to close up. We are a living wedge, driving down to enter a living mass and split it in twain.

The wedge enters. The wedge drives ahead over fallen horses and dismounted men, yelling, slashing, cutting, keeping their pace. A trooper slashes at me, a horse goes down in front of mine, I feel myself falling with my horse, and then I am out of the fight for a moment.

The darkness which enshrouded the things passes away after a bit, and I and my horse lying across my feet with the saddle flap so holding him that his dead body must be lifted up to get me out.

The charge of the gray troopers was broken. That wedge drove right through the mass and turned to attack them in the rear. Swirling about in circles like the vulture of war, the mass of men edges away until the field about me is clear of all but the dead and wounded. I've got a saber cut on the shoulder and can feel the warm blood bathing my arm, but I know I could walk away if I could get my feet clear. I am working to extricate them when I hear hoofbeats behind me. The next moment a riderless horse dashes up and comes to a halt. He has not been hit, but he has left his rider dead back there in the stubble, a Federal captain.

The horse stands pawing and snorting when out from the whirl of death, half a mile away, breaks a chestnut charger and comes galloping down upon us. There is blood on the saddle flaps—drops of blood on his shiny flanks. It is not his blood, but that of the Confederate man who rode him, and who has been cut down by a stroke of the saber.

It is gray versus chestnut—Federal versus Confederate. The newcomer is still a hundred feet away, when the gray horse rushes at him with ears laid back and mouth open, and as I watch them I forget that shells are screaming, bullets whistling and the saber doing bloody work within sound of my voice. As the two horses come together they rear up, neigh defiance at each other and a fight begins—a battle within a battle. Each seems embued with a deadly hatred for the other, and to be determined to destroy his antagonist.

Of a sudden I realize that they are close upon me. In their mad fury they see neither dead nor wounded—hear not the shout and shot of battle.

The gray kicks a dead man aside as he backs up for a fresh effort; the chestnut tramples the life out of a wounded man as he dances about. They will be over me if I do not stop them. The heels of the gray are throwing dirt into my face as I unsling my carbine and rest it across my dead horse for a shot. I fire at the gray, as he is the nearer and the greater menace, but the bullet misses the target. At that moment they begin to work to the left, and in the next they are past me, leaping over dead horses and trampling on dead men as they scream and bite and kick.

Above the roar of battle I hear a rifle shell coming. It gives out a growling, complaining sound which no man ever hears without a chill. The sound grows louder—nearer—crash! The horses were fifty feet away, and it must have struck one of them. There was a cloud of smoke, a whizzing of ragged fragments, and when I could see again both horses were down—torn and mangled and almost blotted off the face of the earth by the awful force of the explosion.

"GERMANY WILL FIGHT TILL ASSURED THAT NO ENEMY ALONE OR COMBINED, WILL AGAIN FIGHT HER," SAYS CHANCELLOR, VON BETHMANN-HOLLWEG.

The German Chancellor in his recent speech before the Reichstag, illustrating the present temper of the German people, said: "Not in hatred do we wage this war, but in anger—in holy anger. The greater danger we have to confront, surrounded on all sides by enemies the more deeply does the love of home grip our hearts, the more we must care for our children and have secured every possible real guarantee and assurance that no enemy, alone or combined, will dare again a trial of arms."

Children Need Special Attention.

That special medical attention should be given to children in the four or five early years before school begins is asserted by Dr. David Forsyth, an English physician, whose views are published in a bulletin just issued by the United States bureau of education. Doctor Forsyth declares that medical inspection of elementary school children points to a widespread physical deterioration during the first four or five years of life, which leaves the majority of children with serious but preventable defects.

Where Parents Lack.

If there were better team work at home, a daughter would grow up to become a wife that the only idiot would desert, and the son would become a husband that a wife would cling to till kingdom come. Parents ought to raise their children by hand more and be sure that they use their hand in the right way.—Houston Post.

Bulldogs.
The origin of the bulldog for a long time has been a matter of controversy, although the origin of the name has been easy to find. It comes from the dog that was used for bull baiting, a sport that was popular some years ago. In attacking the bull the bulldog always attacked him in front and usually fastened to his lip, tongue or eye, and would hold on in spite of the strenuous efforts of the bull to shake him off. Puppies of six months of age were sometimes tried against a bull to see of what mettle they were made, although a dog was not thought ready for his best work until he was fifteen or eighteen months of age and would not reach his prime until four or five years. The bulldog of today is usually well past his prime at five years of age. This undoubtedly has been brought about by inbreeding in order to get perfect show specimens, and as a result their constitutions weakened.—Exchange.

In the Days Before Coal.
People sometimes wonder how their forefathers got on in the days before coal became the staple heater. They fared ill. Wood was the chief commodity in use, both in its natural state and as charcoal, the latter being prepared in the country and suburbs of London and brought into the city in carts, the chief marts for its sale being at Smithfield and on Cornhill. By an enactment of Richard II. it was decreed that the price of charcoal should be fixed at tenpence per quarter from Michaelmas to Easter and eightpence per quarter during the remainder of the year, the regulation of its sale—as well as that of firewood—being committed to the mayor and aldermen. Among the poorer folk fern, reeds and stubble served as fuel, and quite a common method of keeping warm was to sit over pots filled with hot water.—London Chronicle.

The Battery an Historic Spot.
New York city has nature at both ends, the Bronx park at the north, while at the southern extremity one finds the Aquarium, which is so far out of the way as to be much neglected. And what changes this spot has seen! Originally a rocky point, with a few guns for defense, it became a resort for fresh air seekers and then was serviceable for public meetings, for which the enormous building was so well adapted. Here Louis Kosztus delivered his fervent eloquence to sympathizing crowds, and here Barnum held the Jenny Lind concerts, as it held the building of sufficient size. Then it became the entrance for immigrants, where thousands first trod American soil, and, last of all, it is now the wonderful Aquarium, free to the public.—Magazine of American History.

OPEN AIR PAGEANT IN NEWBURGH

The great open air pageant which the citizens of Newburgh will give on the 4th, 5th, 7th and 8th of June, in celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the granting of their city charter, promises to be the most interesting event of its kind ever staged in the upper Hudson Valley, both from an historical and spectacular standpoint.

The grounds of Washington Headquarters where the pageant will take place are admirably adapted for the presentation of such a spectacle. The broad lawn upon which the performers will enact the many episodes, slopes gently down to the broad Bay of Newburgh so that the pageant will have for its background the noble Fishkill hills on whose summits were lighted the famous beacon fires of the revolution. The great grandstand has been built upon the upper slope of the lawn so that the thirty-five hundred spectators whom it will accommodate may witness the dramatic scenes of the closing chapters of the Revolution enacted upon the identical spot where they actually occurred.

For it was here that General Washington made his home during that period, here that his noble and oft-quoted act of "refusing a crown" took place, here that he bade farewell to his loyal Life Guards, and here also that the society of the Cincinnati was conceived.

These and the many other episodes which took place almost within a stone's throw of this historic center will be enacted to a great extent by the actual descendants of those who took part in the originals. Thus the coming of the German Palatines will be enacted by their descendants of the German Lutheran Church. Samuel Colden will impersonate his ancestor Governor Cadwallader Colden, Thomas Ring his forebear. Dr. Brown, and other prominent people of Newburgh, Cornwall, and New Windsor will perform similar offices. The present mayor will act for the first mayor, Dr. William Hasbrouck Snyder will play the part of Lafayette, and Judge A. H. F. Seegar will appear as Baron Steuben.

In the episode "The Entrance of the City—1865," the part of the city will be taken by Mrs. Herbert R. Odell, daughter-in-law of Ex-Governor Odell.

The American army in the Revolutionary scenes will be depicted by two companies of the National Guard, the Sons of Veterans, the Spanish War Veterans, the Order of Moose, the Elks, members of the Y. M. C. A. and two companies of volunteers. The two Masonic lodges will play an all important part in the incident connected with the visit of Lafayette, just as their prototypes did in the actual event. And yet all this is but a small part of the pageant.

Although the events which are to be portrayed in the Newburgh pageant were of purely local occurrence, history shows that they were of nation-wide importance and therefore of interest to the whole country, and particularly so to the inhabitants of the Hudson River Valley. Hence the pageant committee has done everything in its power to facilitate the transportation of guests to and from its golden birthday party. Special rates have been provided for via both boat and railroad, and the Newburgh Automobile Association has agreed to provide parking space for tourists.

The pageant is under the direction of Miss Margaret MacLaren Eager whose past experience in this work assures the success of her undertakings. She is a granddaughter of Samuel W. Eager, first historian of Orange county.

Marrying For Votes.

Marrying for votes was a device of old time British election agents. As the law stood before the reform act of 1832 widows of freemen on marrying again made their second husbands freemen and therefore voters. At election times widows were consequently paid handsomely to go through a formal marriage with a voteless bachelor, who for a consideration similarly agreed to support the candidate. The pair were married, the man voted according to instructions, and then he and his wife, standing on either side of a tombstone, said, "Death do us part." With this literal fulfillment of the matrimonial vow they regarded their marriage dissolved. At the last election in Bristol before 1832 a hundred women gave votes to men.

Russia in the Sciences.

In the sciences Russia has done admirable work in the right spirit, and if it is less well known than it deserves to be it is because the Russians are not advertisers. How many English boys know that was a Russian, Lobahevsky, who discovered the non-Euclidean geometry which has revolutionized the science, or how many boys who study chemistry remember that it was the speculation of a Russian, Mendeleev, which changed (by his periodic law of the elements) the whole current of thought among chemical investigators? As for history, Russians have made the Byzantine age their own. No specialist can afford to ignore their researches.—London Standard.

Two Viewpoints.

"Alas," sighed the writer, "if I did not have such a large family making daily demands on me what masterpiece I could write and what wealth I could win!"

"It's tough working all alone," sighed the writer across the way. "If I only had a family to work for and to make effort worth while what mighty things with the pen I could accomplish!"—Puck.

A Cutting Remark.

"You have cut my hair too short," said the man to the barber. "Now cut it longer."

And the barber, being a man of many sides and much resource, did so. He cut it three minutes longer.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Thought He Was Smart.

Wife—Do you mean to insinuate that your judgment is superior to mine? Husband—Certainly not, my dear. Our choice of life partners proves it isn't.

A House Party.

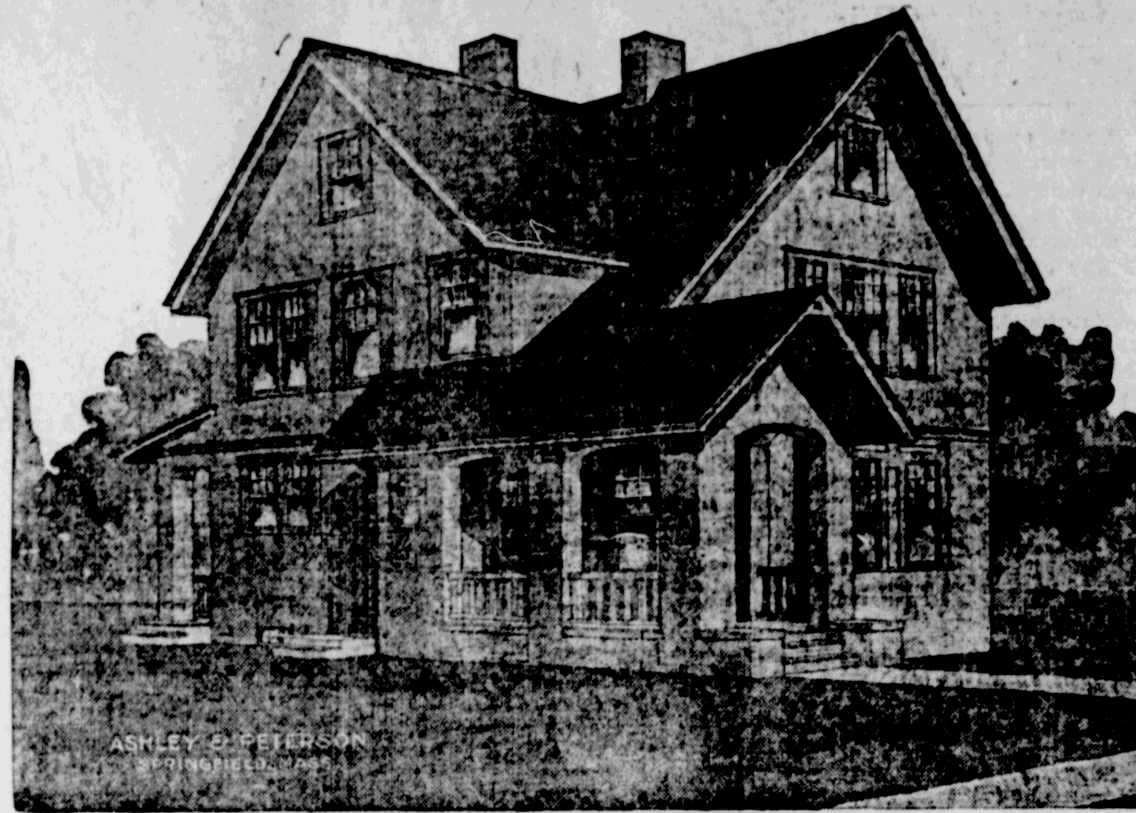

Mrs. Chubb—Didn't you have a house party yesterday at your home? Mrs. Gotham—Yes; the landlord called for his rent.—Baltimore News.

With man most of his misfortunes are occasioned by man.—Pliny.

The Aome of Consideration.

"I shall never find another man like George was," moans the lady in heavy boots. The friend beside her pats her arm soothingly. "He never gave a harsh word," continues the disconsolate one. "Why, there were many times when he spoke to me in kinder tones than he used to the cook—and you know how much we were afraid she would get angry and quit."

An Unpretentious, Comfortable Eight-Room Cottage, No. 126

This is one of those unpretentious houses which surprise one with the amount of room they actually contain. Eight good rooms, besides two ample storerooms, are to be found in the house illustrated above. Besides these the large square reception hall, almost equal to another room in itself.

The exterior presents no striking features, if the unusually wide cornice, supported by brackets, at the front gable, is excepted. The entire house is covered with stucco, and the overhang of the roof being so treated, while the main structure, the piazza and the hood over the side porch are shingled.

From the broad piazza opens the large square reception hall, to the right of which is a generous cloak closet. Directly opposite the entrance are the stairs, while to the left, French doors admit to the living room. Particular attention is directed to the fireplace, which, with the built-in book case at the end, and the passageway, occupies an alcove at the right of the living room proper, which is 13-9x20 feet. A heavy beamed arch spans the entire space from wall to wall, giving, in conjunction with a similar beamed archway between the living room and the dining room, a peculiarly spacious, substantial and rich effect.

The dining room, 13-6x12-8 feet, is like the living room, amply lighted by group windows, and is a particularly cheerful apartment. Here is an artistically designed china closet. Access to the kitchen, 10-10-6 feet, is had through the pantry, the kitchen also being reached through an entry from a side door.

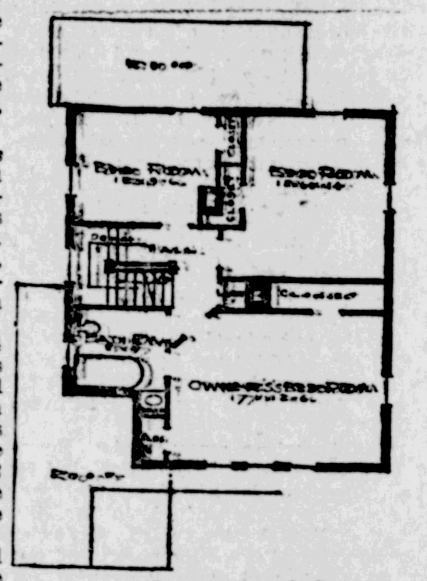

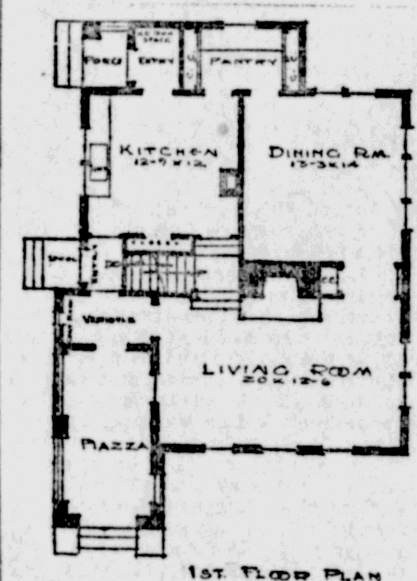

Three bedrooms, 13-9x15, 13-9x14 and 9-8x10-6 feet, all with closets (one having two), a bathroom, and the indispensable linen closet are on the second floor. A flower box adds to the attractiveness, both inside and out. Two bedrooms, 12-6x12 and 10-10-6 feet, with very large store rooms, account for the space beneath the roof.

The coal bin, the boiler room and the laundry are placed side by side at the rear of the basement an arrangement which, even after allowing for the chimney and stairs, leaves a large area free from any obstruction.

Altogether this is a thoroughly satisfying home for the family which prefers genuine comfort, within the scope of comparatively modest means, to a greater degree of ostentation.

"CORN LINE" IN MEXICO CITY. VENUSTIANO CARRANZA, IN CHARGE.

Will President Wilson finally intervene in Mexico? The picture is intensely interesting in view of the recent announcement from Washington that President Wilson had decided "in the interests of humanity" to intervene in Mexico unless the starving condition of the poorer classes was speedily ameliorated.

The photograph shows the "corn-line" in Mexico City, where the poor people, who have lost their all in the swirl of the revolutions which have engulfed Mexico and who have not been able to till the soil and so earn a livelihood, come daily to receive their portion of corn, the only food available, to keep them alive until the time when warring generals shall put personal ambition aside and bring peaceful conditions to horror-stricken Mexico.

The map shows the international boundary line, with the following positions mentioned in the recent despatches from the front: 1. Austrian submarine reported sunk off Venice by two Italian torpedo boats. 2. Italian forces supported by gunboats on Lake Garda, have captured the hills north of Mount Baldo. No. 3. Bozen, where Austrians and Germans are forming the twelfth army corps. 4. Trieste-Nabresina Railroad, raided by a squadron of Italian hydro-aeroplanes. 5. Italians have occupied the mountainous territory between Lakes Idro and Garda. 6. Mt. Altissimo, which dominates the entire Lake Garda district, occupied by a strong Italian force. 7. Carinthia, where the Italians have taken three of the lower mountain passes and fourteen villages.

Calico Dress Not All.

A calico dress can now be bought for a few cents, but there are a number of other things that induce some men to remain in the bachelor class.

Generally Worst Kind.

"A man that gets to sympathizing with himself," said Uncle Eben, "generally does it so well that his friends decide he's got sympathy enough."

Better to Spend Wisely.

If a man hoards money and enjoys it not, he is a fit companion for the donkey that dines on thistles when grass is plentiful.

LIVE STOCK HUSBANDRY

SELECTION OF SHEEP.

Points to Note When Choosing Ewes For Breeding Purposes.

Sometimes the ewes that are wanted for breeders may be selected at birth, if the keeper is familiar with sheep and knows a good lamb when he sees one, writes a correspondent of the Rural New Yorker. But the best time to cull the flock is when the lambs are about six months old. While a ewe should not be bred under eighteen months, it is not at all necessary to wait until this age to determine which ewes to keep for breeding purposes. When the other "points" turn out right we always prefer a single lamb to a twin or triplet to keep for breeders, as they nearly always attain a larger size. While size is important, it is by no means all important.

It is a mistake to select a ewe on account of her unusual length of leg or body, as these points are more of a disadvantage than otherwise. While it is desirable to have the ewe as large as possible, the height should be in flesh and wool instead of in legs. Long legged sheep can give a good account of themselves in keeping out of the way of dogs or in getting over high fences, but that is about all that can be said in their favor.

The Hampshire sheep are becoming quite widely distributed throughout the United States and are popular because of their heavy fleece, good grazing qualities and large size. These sheep are larger than the Southdown, with a heavier fleece of wool. They are more on a par with the Shropshire, but perhaps the wool is a bit coarser. In every way this breed is adapted to an intensive system of farming. The Hampshire ram shown is a fine specimen.

It is a sad mistake to breed a scrub ewe merely for the sake of increasing the size of the flock quickly. Few farmers would care to increase their other lines of live stock in this way. It will pay better to have a little patience and wait until some first class young ewes can be raised. Remember that a ewe may be large and yet be unfit for breeding. A ewe weighing 100 pounds at seven months old and having the desired characteristics is pretty certain to develop into a good breeder. Cull out the aged and inferior ewes from the flock as soon as good younger ones can be obtained to take their place. Where it is thought advisable to increase the size of the flock at once it will pay to sell off the old and worthless ewes and purchase new and younger stock of good breeding even if they cost twice as much as the culls sold for in the market. No money is ever lost in paying good prices for high grade live stock.

THE HOG A MONEY MAKER.

Most Profitable of All Animals When Properly Handled.

The hog can be made the most profitable of all farm animals, and we wonder why the owner of a small farm, no matter where located, does not give this branch of animal husbandry more attention, writes S. S. Owen in the National Stockman. Of course hogs will not grow up like Turkeys, but they will come nearer doing so than any other farm animal, and herein is where they make good. Hogs can be grown in any of our states, and there is always a good market for hogs and hog products and at fair prices.

Men often wrangle over the question of breed, and to us it seems foolish to claim one breed to be far superior to another. We are speaking of the standard or well known breeds.

The farmer wants the kind of hog that he can turn out in the grass and clover fields and that will develop bone and muscle while growing a crop of corn or other grain to lay on the fat when the hogs have attained the proper age and size to feed. We have no variety of grass or clover that a hog will not eat, and cowpeas, soy beans and peanuts are excellent for growing and fattening hogs. Wheat middlings, tankage, blackstrap molasses, etc., are all good for feeding with corn to lay on fat in a hurry.

Hogs are easily kept in good health, but their enemies are worms and lice. However, any good dip will get the lice, and there are many home remedies, like ashes, charcoal, coppers, etc., that will help to destroy worms.

The Ewe at Lambing Time.

The ewe that is to lamb needs a small pen to herself. When running with the flock she is apt to be shoved around to her injury, and when the lamb comes it is very liable to get lost from the mother and perish. A warm bed in a warm pen will give her and her lamb the best chance to come through all right.

Like Sensations.

If a man experiences a twinge when his wife produces a hairpin for the purpose of extracting a cork from a bottle, she has just about the same feeling when he attempts to use a needle and thread without a thimble.

Quite Useless.

Pastor (from the pulpit)—The collection which we took up today is for the savages of Africa. The trower buttons which some of the brethren have dropped in the plate are consequently useless.

How She Got Him

By MARTHA V. MONROE

Didn't I never tell you how your Uncle Cyrus and I come to get married? Well, I'll tell you all about it now. Your uncle was a long, lean, rawboned young fellow, twenty-two years old, and had the farm walk. I don't know where our farmer boys get that walk unless it comes from following the plow. But Cy was a stiddy fellow and had a lot of stuff in him. I knew two young women that wanted him, and I made a third. But the other two was either of 'em so much better fixed than I that I didn't think there was any chance for me, though I didn't see much prospect of my own havin' him 'cause he was so modest he wouldn't be likely to think any of us would have him and wouldn't propose.

One day when I'd been to the store for some things I wanted and was walkin' home Cy come down into the road by a cow path and jined me. "Mornin', Miss Harker," he said. "Mornin', Mr. Rogers," I answered. "You got a lot o' red in your cheeks this mornin'. It's powerful warm."

He was lookin' at me kind o' admiring. "Seems to me either the young fellers about here have mighty poor taste or you don't want to get married."

"Oh, law sakes! Mr. Rogers, there's one wants to marry a girl with no property of her own and no prospects."

"Would you really like to get married?"

"Of course I would. I don't know any girl that wants to be an old maid, I don't, shore."

"If you feel that a-way I reckon I kin help you out. I know a man that lost his wife about a year ago and wants to git married to have some one to take care of his children. I wouldn't mind introducin' him to you."

Fust off I was mad at his talkin' like that instead o' wantin' me for myself, but purty soon I reckoned he was so modest that he hadn't the spunk to put himself forward and was hidin' himself behind the widower. So I didn't let on I suspected, and I says: "Mr. Rogers, if you kin get me that situation I'll be ever so much obliged to you."

He didn't look very cheerful at my bein' willin' to take up with somebody else, but he didn't say anything except that he'd bring the widower to see me. I told him the sooner the better, for I was gittin' on, and purty soon even a widower with a hull lot o' children wouldn't look at me.

I knew well enough that his widower was all in his imagination. Whenever I met Cy after that I asked him when he was goin' to bring his friend around. First, it was the spring plantin' that kept him too busy to do anything else; then the wheat had to be cut, then the corn, and when the crop was all got in I hadn't seen the widower at all. One evenin' when I was drivin' the cows home Cy jined me on the road. I made up my mind that I wasn't goin' to be foolin' along that a-way any longer, so I said, says I: "Mr. Rogers, I thort you was goin' to keep me from bein' an old maid by gittin' me the position o' mother to a man's motherless children. I'm mighty disappointed. It's half a year since you made that promise, and you hasn't kept it yet."

"Tain't my fault," says Cy. "I made the promise at the wrong time. Ef a farmer's goin' to promise anything he oughtn't to do it in the spring, when the summer work's jist comin' on."

"I thort the spring was jist the season for lovin'akin'." Ef you'd brought yer man to see me then like enough we'd done enough courtin' by this time to be married."

Cy didn't look very happy over it. But he didn't seem able to git up enough courage to go on with his way o' courtin', and I made up my mind to begst him.

"Tell you what, Mr. Rogers," I says, "you bring yer man round Saturday night and I'll forgive you for all the time you've wasted. Now, don't you forget it. Come about 8 o'clock, and I'll be ready for him."

I smiled at him the best I knowed how, and jist then we come to the lane leadin' down to the barn, and I turned the cows into it, follerin' 'em myself, and Cy went on down the road.

When Saturday night come round I put on my Sunday clothes and made myself look as well as I could. A kittle before 8 I see Cy comin' down the road. Of course he was alone, for his widower was no more a human bein' than a scarecrow in a cornfield. When he knocked at the door I opened it, and he, bell alone, I said, says I: "Where's your man?"

Cy was makin' up excuses when I interrupted him with, "Here I am all dressed up to receive a lover and there's no lover to receive." I went back into the house and, sittin' down on a sofa, tuk out a handkerchief and pretended to wipe tears out o' my eyes. Cy sot down beside me to comfort me. He said he was mighty sorry to have disappointed me. Ef he wasn't so ungainly he'd offer to take the place of the widower himself; but, seein' he was freckled and rawboned and had the plow stoop, of course he wouldn't be a fit substitute, and all that.

I jist throwed my arms around his neck and said I'd rather have a man rawboned and freckled fust than a secondhand man with half a dozen children. Your uncle was mighty pleased to hear me say that, and when he went away that night at 11 o'clock we was engaged.

RED MONOGRAMS
LOSE TWO GAMES

The first game between the Red Monograms and the Tivoli team Monday afternoon was a veritable "swat-fest." Williams, who hurled for the Monograms, was in unfit condition to pitch. His right arm has been disabled for the past three weeks, and the best he could do was to deliver "straight" balls. As there was no "smoke," the visitors literally knocked the leather off the sphere. The Monograms also hit viciously at times, but Dyckout, who pitched for Tivoli, was splendidly supported and every hit the home players made was excellently fielded. In the eighth inning, F. Simmons, the Tivoli catcher, was painfully injured attempting to gather in a foul fly. He came in contact with the fence, and it was some time before he could resume playing.

In the ninth inning the Monograms began to "pull themselves together," and it looked as if they might tie the score. Williams was thrown out at first, as was also McLean. Bedford hit for one bag. Cook followed with a long single to right and Ashdown walloped for two bags, scoring Bedford. Scherer drove to right, bringing home Ashdown and Cook. Scherer was caught stealing second. Three runs were thus scored. Following is the score by innings:

Monograms— 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9
Tivoli— 1 3 0 0 0 2 0 2 0—8

The Second Game.

When the second game was called Conlon, former Rhinecliff twirler, took his position on the firing line for the Monograms, with Cragin behind the bat. Moore and Simmons were Tivoli's battery. The Monograms played in a listless sort of way, having evidently become disheartened by the result of the first game. The first inning resulted in one run for Tivoli and a goose egg for the Monograms. In the second inning Sneddes made a fine two bagger, but was left on third. McLean made a catch in the third inning that won merited applause. A bad throw by Cragin to second scored Fitzgerald and a safe hit brought in another run for Tivoli. Fitzgerald's long drive to left brought in two runs for the visitors in the fifth. Cook scored for the Monograms on Ashdown's sacrifice.

At this point time was called for the presentation of a ladies' silk umbrella to the holder of the lucky ticket, which proved to be No. 738, and Mrs. H. Harder of Rhinecliff was the winner. The umbrella was put up by Manager Brown. It was not a raffle. Tickets were given the ladies gratuitously.

Bedford made a fine two-bagger in the sixth and Cook brought him home with a long drive to right. The Monograms again attempted to recover from their lethargy in the ninth. Scherer and Glasser singled and Conlon reached first safely. There were now three on bases. Cragin struck out. McLean scored Scherer and Bedford scored Glasser. Cook flew out.

Thus ended what proved to be a somewhat one-sided contest. Manager Brown declared himself in no uncertain terms after the game. A "shake-up" and the infusion of ginger into the Monograms are on the program. Manager Brown proposes to use every effort to strengthen his team wherever weakness is shown and better exhibitions are promised for the future. He is in communication with several crack-jack players from out of town, whose services will be enlisted as quickly as possible.

Ashdown won a pair of baseball shoes, offered by Manager Brown for the player making the greatest number of base hits in four successive games.

The score of the last game, by innings is as follows:

Monograms— 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9
Tivoli— 1 0 2 2 2 1 3 0 0—11

Buley Verdict Affirmed.

The case of Homer B. Buley against Roswell J. Hasbrouck has been unanimously affirmed by the appellate division at Albany. This action was brought to recover damages against the defendant for running into the plaintiff, who resides in the town of Shandaken and the jury rendered a verdict in the sum of $475 in favor of the plaintiff. Brinnier & Canfield were attorneys for the plaintiff and Jenkins & Shufeldt were attorneys for the defendant.

A Curious Illusion.

What has come to be called the "Firehole" in the Yellowstone National Park is a large hot spring from the bottom of which, to all appearances, a light colored flame is constantly issuing, only to be extinguished in the water before it reaches the surface. At times it has a distinct ruddy tinge, and it always flickers back and forth like the lambent flame of a torch. When seen under favorable conditions the illusion is perfect, and the beholder is sure that he has at last caught a glimpse of the hidden fires which produce the weird phenomena of this region. But it is only illusion. Through a fissure in the rock superheated steam escapes and divides the water just as bubbles do on a small scale. The reflection from the surface thus formed accounts for the appearance, which is intensified by the black background formed by the sides and bottom of the pool.—The Yellowstone National Park, by Hiram Martin Chittenden, Brigadier General, U. S. A., Retired.

Prolific Fungi.

An average sized mushroom will produce as many as 1,800,000,000 spores, and a common toadstool shaggy cap has been shown to produce as many as 5,000,000,000. Fortunately for the other inhabitants of the world, however, the probability of successful growth of any given spore is somewhat remote. The mushroom or toadstool plant is formed by fine dimitous threads which ramify beneath the soil, and if we assume that a successful plant of the mushroom or shaggy cap produces as many as ten mushrooms or toadstools we find that the chance against successful growth to maturity is respectively about 18,000,000,000 and 50,000,000 to one in the two species mentioned. Even more prolific than the mushrooms and toadstools proper is the giant puffball, a large specimen of which has been known to produce as many as 7,000,000,000,000 spores.—London Knowledge.

The Spur of Necessity.

Freedom to do exactly as one chooses, if long continued, usually brings one to a point where nothing seems worth choosing. We fret at the constraint of duty and the spur of necessity, but there is nothing in life that supplies such zest as the fact that things must be done and are given into our hands to be accomplished.

MENKE'S DAILY
SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, June 1.—The advent of Junetime focuses the attention of the sporting public on the two big regattas that are to be staged the latter part of the month, and from present indications these affairs promise to be real thrillers.

Naturally, the greatest interest is in the big Poughkeepsie regatta because it has five entries against two in the Yale-Harvard affair, but owing to the brilliant work shown by the Blue and Crimson crews so far this spring, it looks as if the rival crews will hit the water more evenly matched than ever before in history.

Yale has a crew of huskies this year, so has Harvard. Each university has a goodly number of veterans in the shells, with some new blood added that promises to increase the stroking power. It wouldn't be surprising if a new speed record were hung up on the Thames when the crews meet here.

The Poughkeepsie regatta will bring into action varsity crews from Columbia, Pennsylvania, Syracuse, Cornell and Leland Stanford and freshman crews from the first four colleges.

Leland Stanford looms up as the "dark horse" in big varsity affairs. The California outfit, which won its way into the regatta by virtue of its victory in the triangular meet on the Pacific coast, is one of the heaviest and biggest that ever was gathered in one boat. Seven of the eight oarsmen are six feet and over; the eighth is 5 feet 11 inches tall. The average height of the crew is nearly six feet one inch and the average weight 180 pounds.

Some rowing experts think so much bulk is a handicap. That was the sentiment of Leland Stanford battled with, the University of California and the Washington crews on the Pacific. But sentiment underwent a change after the sweeping victory of the Leland-Stanford outfit.

The same crew that won the Pacific coast championship for Leland-Stanford will row at Poughkeepsie, and those who saw the crew in action on the coast pass out the tip—"Watch the Easterners."

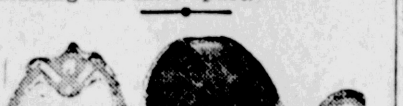

The Cornell varsity outfit doesn't look as good this year as it has in other years. But there's plenty of time to whip it into shape. "Old Man" Courtney has a wealth of material, and the genius of the rowing world rarely ever settles upon his crew makeup until near race time.

Woeful stories issue from Syracuse. One should pity the poor, old Syracuse crowd if one could firmly believe all one hears. But there's such a thing as "bear stories" and that's what those Syracuse yarns listen like. We are told that "for the first time in many years Syracuse has no varsity crew and no real material." But we'll wager a case of cookies that when the crews hit the water Syracuse will have a crew just about as good as the rest.

Columbia looks good. So does Pennsylvania. Columbia has plenty of good material, and Jim Rice is giving all his candidates a thorough try-out before making selections for his varsity outfit. Columbia won the race last year in handy fashion, when it looked to be an outsider, and this year, with better prospects the New York city crowd may go into the race a favorite in the betting.

Pennsylvania must be watched—and watched closely. The Philadelphia gang rowed a wonderful four miles last year. It finished second. It might have won had it timed its spurs a bit sooner. The Pennsylvania aggregation had the power for the final drive, but it held back too long.

There won't be many changes in the makeup of the 1915 crew over that of 1914, and with the experience gained last year, the Pennsylvanians, from this angle look like certain contenders for the first place honors. All in all, the Poughkeepsie battle ought to be a thrilling one all the way along the four mile stretch. The five shells ought to go up to the three mile mark pretty well bunched with everyone ready for the final, heart breaking last mile spurt.

"JACKIE" CLARK TO RACE AT SHEEPSHEAD BAY TRACK.

New York, June 1.—"Jackie" Clark, in a three cornered match race with Harry Kaiser and Bob Spiers, is an added event announced for the great meeting at the Sheepshead Bay Velodrome. The race is to be run in half mile heats.

Clark is a favorite, though Kaiser, who was last year's amateur champion and showed remarkable form in the last six day race, when he turned professional, has many admirers.

Russia's Vast Resources.

Russia lacks only ten longitudinal degrees of stretching half way round the earth, and possesses one-sixth of the land area of the planet. Russia's Asiatic possessions are forty times as great as those of Japan, even since the new Asiatic balance that followed the Russo-Japanese war. The variety of Russia's resources make the empire second only to the United States as the greatest food producing country in the world. It leads all nations in mineral wealth and timber supply.
